

Mary Archuleta
Air Force Research Laboratory, Phillips site

Mary Archuleta has a B.A. in Business from New Mexico Highlands University, and has worked with the Tech Transfer Support Group under Patrick Rodriguez for 13 years. Prior to that, she worked with the Economic Development Department for the State of New Mexico as an Economic Development Representative and as the Human Resources Director for the County of Santa Fe, Santa Fe, N.M.

In her present position as the Tech Transfer Specialist – Marketing Manager for the Air Force/NM-Tech’s Partnership Intermediary, one of her key tasks is to identify local, state, regional and national organizations involved in small business development/tech transfer and leverage those resources relative to AFRL opportunities. She has become an effective member of the FLC’s Communications Committee, and has successfully leveraged and gained positive visibility for AFRL as well as NM Tech. In addition, she has provided oversight for all subcontracts within AFRL Phillips Site that involve marketing and promoting of the site. She has continued to build a rapport with subcontractors and staff to ensure that all tasks are met and to find additional funding opportunities.
