

George A. Metzenthin
Cahn & Samuels, LLP

George Metzenthin is a Partner with Cahn & Samuels, LLP for over ten years. Prior to joining Cahn & Samuels, LLP, he was an associate another small intellectual property law firm in Washington, DC. George specializes in patent prosecution and licensing, with a particular emphasis in computer software, hardware, business methods and medical devices. He regularly counsels clients regarding the global protection of their intellectual property and his familiarity with a wide variety of scientific and engineering disciplines enables him to understand, prepare and prosecute applications for his clients' innovations. He works closely with his clients to help them identify their intellectual property and develop strategies to build and utilize their technology. He has regularly lectured at various U.S. Army medical and research facilities on patent law and intellectual property involving government employees. In addition to his work with the Army, George counsels federal fund recipients on the special issues related to intellectual property ownership, licensing, and development that flow from use of federal funds.

George is a patent attorney admitted to practice before the U.S. Patent & Trademark Office, the State of Ohio, the State of Maryland, the District of Columbia, and the United States Court for the District of Columbia.

George received his Juris Doctor from Case Western Reserve University in 1995 where he was the Publishing Editor of the Case Western Reserve Journal of International Law. George also graduated cum laude from Case Western Reserve with Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering and Applied Physics with a Minor in Economics. While an undergraduate student, he was admitted to Tau Beta Pi.
