

THOMAS MORELAND
Agricultural Research Service (ARS)

Tom Moreland joined the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) Office of Technology Transfer (OTT) as a program analyst for the Cooperative Research and Development Agreements program in December 2002. Prior to joining ARS Tom worked for the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture for over twenty two years. While at the University he received his BA and MS from the School of Technology Management. In 2004 Tom was assigned the responsibility for the management of the ARS Export Control Program. Over this time Tom has worked closely with the Bureau of Industry and Security and attended a number of sponsored training programs. To date Tom has overseen thirty Export Control applications and worked with the ARS DHS on a number of security related areas. Tom represents the agency at U.S. Department of Commerce Bureau of Industry and Security conferences and meetings and is the main source of Export Control information for the scientist and areas within ARS.
