

Marlene M. Owens

Ms. Marlene Owens is the Technology Transfer Program Manager for the Department of Homeland Security. She directs the Office of Research and Technology Applications within DHS, and she is responsible for effecting technology transfer via various mechanisms to the nation.

Prior to joining DHS, Ms. Owens spent sixteen years at DOD working for the Office of the Secretary of Defense, Missile Defense Agency, and the US Army. At DOD, Ms. Owens worked as a Program Manager/Systems Engineer in various capacities in the missile defense and chemical-biological defense communities.

Ms. Owens has a MS in Systems Engineering and a BS in Industrial Engineering.